Do you think cultural diversity is important for society?

What have you gained from getting in contact with people from different cultures?

Is social inclusion important to you?

What do you consider as the most challenging issue for your inclusion in Greece?

Which initiative do you think would be most effective to facilitate social inclusion of young refugees in Greece?

What can young people do to make Greece a more welcoming place for newcomers?

«[...] We should find common interests with the refugees and migrants who come to our country, and show them places where they will feel safe and happy.»

U-Reporter 18 years old, Greece

«We should put aside any fear for people who are different and put ourselves in their position in order to understand what it means to have no other option but to leave the country where you grew up, carrying only the hope for a better life. Because tomorrow we might be the ones who will have to leave our country.»

U-Reporter 18 years old, Volos

«[...] We should create safe spaces in all neighborhoods where refugees and migrants can participate in the life of the local community and contribute in their own way.»

U-Reporter 25 years old, Athens

«Young people need to be more sensitized about discrimination and diversity.»

U-Reporter, 17 years old, Ioannina

What is healing for you?

What is healing for you?

«[...] To take care of someone without expecting him/her to take care of you and without doing it because you have to, but because you want to help.»

U-Reporter, 14 years old, Lefkada

«[...] helping each other and keep fighting for everything that really matters despite the difficulties and obstacles»

U-Reporter, 16 years old, Pylaia-Chortiatis

«Taking care of a weak person and helping him/her becoming independent, until finally, after a while, the care you gave to this person is returned back to you as a reward from the one who is now stronger.»

U-Reporter, 13 years old, Athens

«[...] Healing means trying to heal the wounds of a fellow human being. It means mutual understanding. Support. An expression of selfless love.»

U-Reporter, 16 years old, Larisa
